VOL. 3, NO. 2

JANUARY-FEBRUARY, 1948
L. D. COLE, GRANNIS, ARK., EDITOR

JAN 30 1948
30c FOR 12 ISSUES

November was almost as pleasant as October usually is. First light frost of the season fell the night of November 5, and almost every night thereafter. But a volunteer Tomato plant growing close against the wall on the south side of my office and protected by wide eaves, was not killed until night of December 13. Grass still green.

The woods were lovely through November, but Oak leaves falling now and people flouting one of God's good gifts by burning them.

THE LEGEND OF THE DOGWOOD

Ruth Mooney, Seligman, Mo.

The way the story goes, in the beginning, the Dogwood grew straight and tall, a fine tree and was used to fashion the cross on which Jesus was crucified.

After this it was so bowed down in shame, that, to make it feel less badly, God promised that never again would it be used for such a purpose. So ever since it has grown small and gnarly.

The flower is shaped in the form of a cross with the nail prints and blood stains showing.

Why is the Red Bud called the Judas tree?

The old legend is that Judas hanged himself on a Red Bud tree.

HAWORTHIAS

Mrs. E. J. Peterson,
Eagle Bend, Minn.

An opportunity to have Haworthias for a subject to write about pleases me a good deal, since they are my favorite succulent. They are native to South Africa, and are named for an English botanist by the name of Adrian Hardy Haworth. They seem to become favorites of every one that grows them, due to their very neat appearance, and their adaptability to available window space. They seem to adapt themselves to any light, and still retain their lovely form.

Some have what is called "windows" in tip of leaves; others what is called "Eve lashes." Also one called "lace." Some varieties seem to be covered with seed pearls. One is called "frosted zebra" for common name. Some have very plump pale green succulent leaves, while others are dark green and rough like. Some have long and narrow leaves, while others are short and stubby. All so very attractive and easy to grow, and they grow in stemless rosette form, so they do not become "leggy" like some plants.

Due to their small size quite a number may be grown in a small space, since some varieties are so elusive and difficult to obtain, they are ideal to specialize in. They seem to enjoy a rather rich soil. I use the following mixture:

1½ 1-lb. coffee can leaf mould.

½ 1-lb. coffee can ordinary garden soil.

½ 1-lb. coffee can sand.

1 cup well rotted cow manure.

1 cup charcoal.

In Matthew 25: 31, 46 Jesus gives a detailed description of the final judgment. He does not mention mode of baptism, nor church government, nor how much we have shouted and testified. His basis is practical good citizenship, hospitality, kindly acts of unselfish-

Only $2.95, Postage Prepaid, is the price of the new "Randy-Handy" Washer-rinser. The laundry aid you have been waiting for, because it washes, rinses, starches, and dyes.

FOR WASHING sheer curtains, chenille spreads, blankets, slip covers, sweaters, ladies dresses (with fragile buttons), blouses, diapers, baby clothes, socks, and undies, it is unexcelled.

AS A RINSER it can be used to rinse all the above clothes, and all other clothes that have been washed in an electric washing machine. Proper rinsing eliminates 'tattle tale gray' so often blamed on the soap.

IN STARCHING the washer-rinser distributes the starch evenly through the clothes.

WHEN DYEING the dye solution is pulled uniformly through the material by the rinsing.

FARM WOMEN report excellent results using the washer-rinser for washing small vegetables such as beans, peas, or spinach prior to canning or deep freezing.

THE WASHER-RINSER has three firm rubber vacuum cups securely fastened to a clover-leaf shaped zinc yoke. It is fitted with a 21-in. hardwood handle, smoothly finished, capped with a rubber grip. Weighs but 28 ounces, small enough to work in a pail, yet rugged enough to use in regular laundry tubs. It can be used in cold, hot, and boiling water.
